Supplement

INTRODUCTION

The annual reports program of the Division of Educational Measurements is intended to provide the Council on Dental Education, the Commission on Dental Accreditation, the community of dental educators and practitioners, and other interested groups with information on various aspects of dental education. The purpose of the present supplement is to provide a list of the dental-school administrators to Council and Commission staff. This listing is organized according to institutions ordered alphabetically by state. The information contained in this supplement was obtained from the Annual Survey of Predoctoral Dental Educational Institutions, American Dental Association. Information on dental-school administrators is available for general distribution in the Directory of Dental Educators, American Association of Dental Schools.

Dental Student Attrition

I. INTRODUCTION

Annually, the Division of Educational Measurements gathers student attrition data from United States dental schools* by means of the Survey of Predoctoral Dental Educational Institutions as well as through withdrawal forms submitted for each of the students who withdraw from school. Students who repeat an academic year or who receive a definite leave of absence are not included in these data. Between 1973 and 1979, the attrition rate after one full year of dental education was approximately 3.56% (see Table 1). However, during the past five years the rate of attrition for the dental school freshmen has begun to climb, 4.30% in 1980-81, 4.95% in 1981-82, 5.57% in 1982-83, 6.77% in 1983-84, and 7.23% in 1984-85. During 1984-85, 172 sophomores (3.50% of the sophomore class) withdrew, while 63 withdrew from the junior class (1.29%) and 28 from the final year of dental education (0.52%). These 620 students amount to 3.08% of the total 1984-85 dental school enrollment.

* First-Year enrollment and attrition for Emory and Oral Roberts Universities are not included.

Comparing the number of 1984-85 withdrawals with the number of students in their individual freshman classes permits a conclusion that an attrition rate of approximately 13% can be expected of a class of students for the four years of dental education. This four-year rate of attrition has increased from the 11% that would have been expected based on 1983-84 data.

First-year attrition occurred in private and private, state related schools with approximately the same frequency as in public schools. Private school first-year attrition accounted for 47% of 1984-85 freshman withdrawals. Private schools accounted for 46% of first-year enrollment during that same year. The majority of freshmen who withdrew did so voluntarily (55%). Less than one-half (34%) of all freshman withdrawals were in good academic standing when they withdrew.

* Emory and Oral Roberts Universities are discontinuing their dental education programs and are no longer accepting entering classes. Enrollment and attrition data for these programs are not included in this study.

II. PERSONAL REASONS FOR ATTRITION

Personal reasons for withdrawal have, in previous years, outnumbered academic reasons (Table 2), while a change of career objective was the most frequently reported personal reason for withdrawal from dental school (Table 3). For 1984-85, academic reasons became the most frequently reported. Most of the students who withdrew for personal reasons were in good academic standing and had no reported difficulty with coursework, but they withdrew to follow a career other than dentistry. During the 1984-85 year, 11 students left dental school explicitly to enter a medical school and 30 student left a particular dental school to transfer to another dental school. Eighteen of these 30 students were freshmen. Financial reasons were given for the withdrawal of 14 students, eight freshmen, five sophomores, and one junior.

III. ACADEMIC REASONS FOR ATTRITION

In annual studies of dental freshman attrition, a comparison between the DAT scores of students withdrawing because of academic problems and the DAT scores of all freshman has been completed. Since 1975, when this analysis was initiated, the studies have indicated that the percentage of these students with below average DAT scores was significantly greater than the percentage of all freshmen with below average DAT scores. This year, again, there is a significant difference in the DAT scores of those who withdrew because of scholastic difficulty and the remaining freshmen. The mean DAT academic average of those withdrawing for personal reasons was 4.46 (somewhat lower than the mean for all freshmen, 4.52), while those withdrawing because of problems in academics have a significantly lower mean DAT academic average, 3.36. This difference is in evidence in the technic area also. The mean perceptual ability test scores for those withdrawing for personal reasons was 4.09, for those withdrawing because of problems in technic courses, 3.14; all freshmen, 4.66. Figures, 1, 2 and 3 graphically portray these differences. Freshman who withdraw because of problems in academic or technic coursework continue to have, on the average, significantly lower DAT scores than other first-year students.

IV. MINORITY ATTRITION

In 1984, women constituted 27.1% of the entering class in all United States dental schools and 23.8% of the entire dental enrollment. Women, however, made up 26.6% of the first year withdrawals and 27.3% of the withdrawals from all four years. As can be seen from Table 4, the attrition rate for women in dental school was slightly higher than for men in 1984-85.

An analysis of student attrition by ethnic minority categories indicates that Black students withdraw at a greater rate than other students. As Table 5 indicates, Black students account for a disproportionately large percentage of withdrawals as compared to their percentage of enrollment. A similar trend may be seen for Asian students.

Table 6 indicates that the greatest proportion of the 1984-85 freshman withdrawals of minority students were for scholastic reasons related to coursework. This is not the case for withdrawals of non-minority dental students

V. CONCLUSION

In summary, the freshman attrition rate that had been consistently held to approximately three and one half percent during the 1970's increased to over seven percent in 1984-85. The national dental school entering class can be expected to experience approximately a 13% attrition rate by the time of graduation, if one takes the 1984-85 rate of attrition as a base. Unlike previous years, the students withdrawing for academic reasons outnumbered those withdrawing for personal reasons. Freshman withdrew from school more often because of academic problems in didactic courses than in technic courses, both areas of difficulty having a significant relationship to Dental Admission Test scores. Finally, the attrition rate for women was slightly higher than for men and was also higher for Black first-year students than for other freshmen.
